VBAC 60th Anniversary

The Virginia Beach Angler's Club celebrated their 60th year last Saturday night, February 16, 2019. At the banquet we dined on an excellent meal and recognized those members who had excelled in salt water and fresh water fishing.

The meal preparation was orchestrated by Gerry Mariano and assisted by John Gabriel, John Germanos and Mark Wray. We had the pleasure of various Appetizers, Prime Rib, Seafood Newburg, Rice, Green Beans and Peppers, Roasted Potatoes, Tossed Salad, Rolls and Butter, and a multitude of deserts provided by the members and Banana Foster. The meal was excellent. If you missed the banquet you missed a real treat.

Chris Schneider, Prize Fish Chairman and George Gabriel, Master of Ceremonies led the recognition of the award-winning anglers. Thirty-five different species were submitted for consideration. Twenty-two anglers were recognized for their Top Salt Water entries (catch or release) and seven anglers were recognized for their Top Fresh Water entries (catch or release). Based on the club minimum size guidelines, two anglers were recognized as Expert Anglers and five members were recognized as Master Anglers. We also recognized the anglers that were the Most Outstanding Salt and Fresh Water fisherman, the Male and Female Catch or Release Anglers of the year and the Male and Female Surf Fishing Anglers of the year

The last two awards presented were the Dr. James C. Wright Conservation Award and the prestigious Member of the Year Award. Delegate Barry Knight was recognized for his work to maintain and improve the quality of the Chesapeake fishery through his efforts in the Virginia Assembly. Finally, we recognized Bryan Watkins as our Member Of The Year. This award recognizes an outstanding VBAC member who has given much time and effort to improving the quality of the VBAC.

The evening ended with a Chinese Raffle of over 60 items. Numerous very fine items were won including, many rods and reels, fully equipped tackle boxes, electronics for the boat and home, Go Pro camera, tackle, lures and other items. The table center pieces, designed and made by Maureen Gabriel, were also raffled off.

VBAC 60TH ANNIVERSARY COMMEMORATIVE MUG

At the recent Awards Banquet held on February 16th, each member and their guest were presented a Virginia Beach Angler's Club 60th Anniversary commemorative mug. If you were unable to attend the banquet (you missed a good one) each member may pick up a mug from Patty Searby at the March General Membership meeting.

This will be the only opportunity for those members who missed the banquet to pick up a mug. Those mugs that were not picked up at the March meeting will go on sale for $15.00 commencing the April meeting.

Club Fishing Records List Being Updated

It came to our attention that the Club Fishing Records List had not been updated in many years and needed to be overhauled. Our Prize Fish Committee chairman Kelly Hoggard spent time cross referencing all of the records available on the website. He has created an updated table that has removed duplicated species under different names and updated all records up to the completion of the 2018 fishing awards season. The list has also been reformatted to be easier to read and compare similar species.

All members are encouraged to review any records they have obtained. If you have paperwork that proves a record should be yours, you should submit that to the Prize Fish Committee in hand or by email by the March 7th meeting if possible. The Club Fishing Records List will be reviewed by the Board and Officers at the next board meeting prior to publication. -VBAC Board and officers.

Photo Contest

The Board of Directors and the prize fish committee have refreshed and updated a photo contest open to all club members. For 2019 and beyond, a $50 cash prize will be awarded to the club member who submits the winning photo. For the club fishing roulette and photo contest, a photo of the angler, with his/her catch, will be required. All other roulette rules remain unchanged. A committee, comprised of Board members, will evaluate all photo submissions and select a winning photo.

CHESAPEAKE BAY FOUNDATION

Saving a National Treasure

Saturday marked the end of Virginia's 2019 General Assembly, and I'm happy to report it was a great session for clean water! With unprecedented investments in critical clean water programs, it's clear our legislators value the Bay and Virginia's rivers and streams. Learn more about the successes you helped make possible!

Learn More

The historic investments in clean water include—

- A record $89.7 million for Virginia's Agricultural Cost-Share program for farmers to install pollution-reducing practices, such as manure sheds, cover crops, excluding livestock from streams, streamside buffers, and more.
- $4 million for oyster replenishment and restoration efforts—the highest amount for one year, to help this iconic bivalve return.
- $10 million for the Stormwater Local Assistance Fund, which provides matching grants to localities for projects that reduce the flow of polluted runoff into local waterways.

Beyond the budget, legislators also passed many measures friendly to clean water, such as maintaining rules to reduce polluted runoff, improving relationships between landowners and the oyster aquaculture industry, and requiring the cleanup of coal ash ponds. Get up to speed on all things clean water from Virginia's 2019 legislative session!

We didn't win every battle, however. A bill to help localities increase their tree canopies died in committee. Also failing in committee were bills to ban offshore drilling and to transfer management of menhaden, a critical forage fish, from the General Assembly to the Virginia Marine Resources Commission.

But we have many successes to celebrate from this legislative session. Your voice and your advocacy efforts helped keep Virginia's rivers, streams, and the Chesapeake Bay near the top of legislator's priorities. Take a moment now and thank them for their support for clean water!

Many, many thanks.

Rebecca Tomazin
Virginia Executive Director
Chesapeake Bay Foundation

P.S. Though session is now over, our fight for clean water continues in full force. We are continuing to keep a close eye on the proposed Atlantic Coast Pipeline and its potential compressor station in Buckingham County. This month, CBF filed a lawsuit challenging the compressor station permit, together with the Southern Environmental Law Center and local partners Friends of Buckingham. We are concerned about this project jeopardizing the health of this rural, minority community in addition to negatively impacting our environment. Emissions from the facility would add a new source of pollution to Chesapeake Bay waterways and contribute to climate change. We'll keep you updated!

By Greg Wehner

Fishermen tell the best tales about the ones that got away. I have mine. I hooked a king mackerel from the Virginia Beach oceanfront, but a cigarette boat named the Rudee Rocket, freaked the fish out, causing it to bite through the 50-pound monofilament leader, and it got away. Tales like this were told for years on the old Virginia Beach steel pier in the late 50s and early 60s. A group of men fishing at the pier in 1959 were sharing those tales when the idea of a new fishing club in Virginia Beach was spawned.

In 1985, Josh Vaughn, one of the founding members of the Virginia Beach Anglers Club, shared his memories of what it was like. While he could not recall who the first person to say, "Why can't we have a fishing club here instead of having to go all the way to Norfolk," he could spit off names like Sawyer, Dant, Crockett, Morse, Stevens, Davenport and Walker, as those who helped get it started. Mr. Vaughn said when the fishing was slow, they all shared stories. The camaraderie angered members of another local anglers club, he said, and it led to heated exchanges to the point that one of the members of that club taunted the men and called them the Steel Pier Angler's Club. Although that name did not stick, the club was formed under a new name—The Virginia Beach Anglers Club—with a few rules. Money interests would never influence the club, and the club would never be a sounding board for any group or person. Talk of politics was forbidden, and discrimination was frowned upon. So, it did not matter if a person fished from a pier, the beach or boat, nor did it matter if they were using eight-n-bait or a cork bobber with a bamboo pole. They were fishermen - all the same.

In the beginning, the meetings were held at the Virginia Beach Convention Center, the old Dome. During the first pre-organization meeting, Mr. Vaughn made a motion to call the club the Virginia Beach Anglers Club, and it stuck. At the club's next meeting, the charter officers were elected. Serving as the president was Charlie Dant, vice president was Jake Sawyer, and the secretary was Andy Holland. The club's emblem was approved two months later, in February 1960. On it were the old and new lighthouses which represent the City of Virginia Beach. Two boats are seen trolling in the background and a surf fisherman is in the foreground—both elements representing the diversity of the club.

For the first 15 years, men like Mr. Dant, Ellis Mills, Jay Smith and Fred Rushin served as presidents, but in 1974, Betty Smith became the first woman to serve in the spot. Diversity and equality rang true, even back then. In 1960, the club entered the Ocean City Cup in New Jersey. It was considered the “world series” of surf casting. The prize was a tall trophy with a silver Chalice that was valued at approximately $150,000. When compared with the Stanley Cup back then, the trophy had a higher value. For years, the champions were able to take the trophy home. But that ended when the appraisal was done on the trophy, and it was since kept in Ocean City. That first year that the club entered the casting tournament, it finished in fifth—the worst it ever placed—but every years since, it finished either first or second. Along with participating in casting tournaments, the VBAC participated in fishing tournaments since day one.

In 1960, the club finished first in the Cape Hatteras Anglers Club Fishing Tournament. The club went on to win it again in 1967. VBAC teams continued to compete at tournaments in Ocracoke, Nags Head, Hatteras Village and Long Beach Island—which club members only began attending recently. The club hosted a few surf tournaments in Virginia Beach, but security at Dam Neck and restrictions along city beaches curtailed that. In the late 70s and into the 80s, the club ran a small boat marlin tournament that was very successful and allowed the club, to this day, to have a very comfortable treasury. As for freshwater fishing, the club hosted a bass tournament in the 60s, though details of the event are sparse. Even though political speak was frowned upon all of those years, club members became key figures in the fight against a saltwater fishing license and on fishing regulations. Today, members still speak up on major issues involving regulations and fishing quotas.

Members have been instrumental in educating the public about fishing, whether through hosted tournaments for children, or from a booth at the yearly boat show. While many events, such as the small boat marlin tournament, have been replaced with others or written out of the equation, the club is going strong, thanks to the help of generations of individuals who poured their heart and soul into it. When we all set aside our differences for the sake of the club, and focus on the things that matter—like catching fish and sharing stories about the ones that got away—our club can continue to thrive and will be around for generations to come.

FISHERIES MANAGEMENT DIVISION EVALUATION, 1/22/2019

Request for

Public Hearing: Proposal to amend Chapter 4 VAC 20-740-10 et seq., “Prohibits the Snagging of fish,” to include a prohibition on the towing of cobia and striped bass.

Issues: Towing of fish, particularly of large striped bass, received high profile media attention last month as the late fall striped bass fishery peaked and the majority large cash payout striped bass tournaments were scheduled. Reasons for attaching a large striped bass to a rope and towing it behind the boat are varied. This practice allows the anglers continue to fish and maintain the quality of the catch, keeps the fish alive for substitution of a larger fish (high grading) and most recently, to keep the fish alive and force water into its stomach—added weight, added value at the scale. While fish towed behind the boat may remain alive, as a group if released (or substituted for a bigger fish) they surely suffer a higher mortality rate than a fish released immediately when landed. At least some of last month’s contentions of the prevalence of striped bass being towed behind the boat can be attributed to anglers seeking to add weight to their catch. Trips resulting in a boat limit of large striped bass (one fish per angler) are rare. Additionally Fisheries staff did receive reports during the cobia season that anglers practicing sight casting would be seen towing their one fish over 50 inches. The assumption--the towed fish could be more ethically released when substituted for a larger cobia.

Continued:

Background: High-grading of recreationally caught fish, where a smaller legal-sized fish in the angler's possession is substituted for a just caught larger specimen to remain within the legal possession limit, is not a new situation. This is a well-established practice for freshwater largemouth bass fishermen with functioning livewells, particularly when fishing during a tournament with cash or prize rewards. In this scenario legal fish are placed in a livewell and once a limit is reached any heavier fish caught are substituted for the smallest catch in the livewell. Some saltwater anglers have functioning livewells and follow this same procedure. Fish with a very small possession limit, such as striped bass over 28 inches (one fish per person) or cobia over 50 inches (one fish per vessel) are the most likely targets—especially when the angler is participating in a tournament offering cash or major prizes. But few livewells can accommodate large striped bass or cobia. In saltwater, anglers fishing at anchor or drifting, have traditionally placed large fish, such as black drum and cobia, on a stringer. Both of these species are caught primarily during the warmer months of the year. Initially this practice was done solely to preserve their catch but this practice also allows anglers to keep fish alive if they later decide to release their catch. In addition, some anglers will high grade catch once their legal limit has been reached, whether the fish is alive on a stringer or dead in their cooler, and send the smallest fish in their possession overboard.

Staff Recommendation: Staff recommends the Commission approve advertising for a public hearing to amend Chapter 4 VAC 20-740-10 et seq., "Prohibits the Snagging of fish," to include a prohibition on the towing of cobia or striped bass.

Chef's Corner: Cypriot Venison Meatballs (“Keftedes”)

MARCH 2019

Flavors and traditions from the Mediterranean collide with Southeastern Virginia venison to create this tasty treat that can be served as an appetizer or main fare – and it's just as good cold or hot!

This month's featured recipe was recently put to the test at the 60th Annual VBAC Awards Banquet at St, Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church in Virginia Beach – the perfect venue for this Cypriot classic known as “Keftedes” – or fried meatballs.

The traditional recipe is made with a blend of ground pork, lamb, and beef, but many different ground meats will work. The idea of blending meats simply enabled all the trimmings from the hunt or the harvest to be assimilated in a simple, tasty dish such that nothing was wasted.

To prove just how versatile this recipe is, I have repeatedly made Keftedes from 100% pure lean wild venison without any beef or pork fat added, and it is superb – to the point of fooling the experts...my father and uncle – both from the Old Country and fierce adherents to traditional flavors and methods.

The signature cigar-shaped delicacy is always the first to go at any of our family gatherings, and from all accounts, VBAC folks did a great job of wiping them out at the banquet, too!

I made the batch featured in this article at our farm in Southampton County using ground venison from the freezer which was harvested on the property during the early 2018 archery season. We turn some pretty good food out of our modest kitchen at the hunting camp, and it is particularly satisfying to know the star ingredient comes from our land!

Feature Picture: Venison Keftedes with Spring Onion

Cypriot Venison Meatballs (Keftedes)

Ingredients:

1 pound ground venison

1 medium potato, peeled and grated

1 large onion, finely chopped

1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley (can substitute mint, too!)

2 Eggs

4 cloves fresh garlic, crushed and finely minced; or, substitute 1 teaspoon granulated garlic

1 tablespoon salt (I like to “salt the board” after mincing garlic to absorb the oils – see below)

½ teaspoon black pepper (use up to a full teaspoon for more spice)

½ teaspoon cinnamon, ground (can substitute ¼ tsp each of ground cinnamon and clove for more aromatic flavors)

Oil for frying (peanut, canola, vegetable, etc.)

Basic Ingredients from the Farm Fridge!

NOTE: It's okay to err on the conservative side of spice at first – simply mix and fry a “sample” meatball to taste. You can always add more spice, but you can't easily take it away! For the banquet, I scaled everything up for 6 lbs. of venison.

Well-blended Mixture “Ready to Roll”

Rolled and Ready!

Instructions:

Combine all ingredients in a large vessel and mix thoroughly until texture firms-up.

It will feel soupy until well blended, so keep mixing until a firm, tacky texture is achieved.

Let chill in fridge to “set” –this helps firm-up the mixture further before rolling.

Roll chilled mixture into 2-inch long cigar-shaped meatballs (small round meatballs work fine, too!).

Heat oil to approximately 375°F while rolling the meatballs.

Fry until golden brown on each side – approximately 5 minutes per side.

Serve hot or cold as a main dish or appetizer (“meze”).

Garnish with lemon wedges, scallions, and fresh parsley or mint – we like to squeeze a little fresh lemon on the meatballs as well!

This dish is great with a side of Tzatziki, Pita bread (or Pita Chips), humus, olives, and/or Greek Haloumi cheese!

Chef's Corner: Cypriot Tzatziki (Bonus Feature!)

March 2019

This “Bonus Feature” was prepared and served as an accompaniment to the Cypriot Venison Meatballs at the VBAC 60th Annual Awards Banquet and is Angler-tested and Club-approved!

Tzatziki is a refreshing dip essential to cuisines of Southeast Europe and the Middle East. It reflects the legacy of the Ottoman Empire which once controlled the island country of Cyprus in the Mediterranean Sea and home to my Greek ancestors and many current relatives.

It is an excellent side dish for classic Greek kebabs – and of course, Keftedes – which is the featured recipe of the month.

Tzatziki is a popular appetizer, or “Meze” that combines simple ingredients and appeals to the most discriminating palate!

Tzatziki with a Mint Garnish and Pita Bread.

Cypriot Tzatziki Dip

Ingredients:

- 1 large cucumber, unpeeled
- 1 1/2 cups plain full-fat Greek yogurt (use 2 cups for a less intense flavor if desired)
- 2-3 large garlic cloves, finely minced (I like to crush mine to a paste in a mortar and pestle)
- 2 Tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
- 1 Tablespoon lemon juice (more or less to taste)
- 1 Teaspoon salt (you can always add a pinch more to taste!)
- 1 Teaspoon fresh ground black pepper
- 2 Tablespoons fresh mint, finely chopped (can substitute fresh dill if desired – I like the mint!)

Instructions:

Crush the garlic to release the oils and finely mince or grind to a paste (I like to use the salt to soak up the oils).

Grate the cucumber and drain through a fine mesh sieve overnight in the fridge.

Combine the yogurt, garlic, olive oil, lemon, and spices in a large bowl. Cover and refrigerate overnight.

Transfer the grated cucumber and fresh dill to the melded yogurt mixture and stir to combine.

Serve chilled with pita bread for dipping.

Melding the yogurt, garlic, oil, lemon, and spices.

Grating the Cucumber.

Draining Grated Cucumber.

Tzatziki Tips:

- Make sure your grated cucumber is well-drained. If you have time, you can drain it in cheesecloth or a fine mesh sieve overnight.
- If you're in a rush, you can use your hands to squeeze the liquid out of the cucumber by pressing it in the strainer.
- Full-fat Greek yogurt is best, but low-fat can be used if you are willing to sacrifice texture – be sure to drain all water/liquid in either case!
- Use the salt to absorb any residual garlic oil from the cutting board or mortar and pestle – that's the good stuff!
- The longer the garlic "rests" in the yogurt, the less sharp bite it will have and the better it will taste as the garlic melds with the yogurt, oil, and spices.
- For best results, combine all of the ingredients except for the cucumber and mint (or dill), then let it rest overnight in the fridge while your cucumber is draining.
- Add the mint or dill at the last minute so it doesn't overwhelm the rest of the flavors.
- Vinegar may be substituted for lemon, but Islanders love lemon!
- This recipe is extremely flexible and does not require strict adherence – best to start small and add as you go to tweak to your particular taste – especially with the garlic, mint, or dill!
- Toasting the pita bread and/or using pita chips makes dipping easier!
- Can also be served as a dressing for classic chicken, lamb, or pork Shish Kebabs in folded pitas with a nice Greek Salata!

2/24/2019 - Puffers in the Surf at Kure Beach, NC

Had some squid left over from the fall and gave it a try for a couple hours on Carolina Beach. Tried a bar and slough with a nice hole nearby. Not much biting in the 56 degree water. There was good visibility in the water and a light green tint. The water was too cold for the fish bites so I had to abandon those. Also couldn't find the sand fleas even though I dug pretty deep into the washing sand. Went 4 out of 5 on puffer bites. One went 12". There's no complaints to have a line in the water in mid-February. Reports are that the roundhead bite is picking up between Bogue Inlet and Johnny Mercer's Pier in Wrightsville Beach. Hopefully they make their way north soon. Water temps in Buxton were 60 degrees on Feb 20th so look for some action around Hatteras as long as those temperatures remain stable or rise. Looking forward to the spring warm up.

2.4.19 Fishing with Russell at Lake Whitehurst:

Went crappie fishing with Russell on his 16 Ft. Carolina Skiff on Lake Whitehurst 2.4.19 on the second day of warm weather in February after a freezing week earlier. Ocean's East didn't have a shiners after changing their tanks but Zach Bowles sent us to Care-A-Lot and they have shiners used for feeder fish costing $.25 for each fish. The parking lot was empty except for one bass fisherman. Wind out of the N @ 10 mph made for a nice drift so we set up to drift with bobbers in a deep spot that we had caught crappie last year. We found plenty of fish on the Hummingbird and in no time I had both of my bobbers go down. Two nice fish just under a pound each. Next drift got me a littler one but still a nice keeper fish. Despite more drifts in the area no more were caught. So we started exploring the shallows and some newer spots we had not previously fished. As I was pulling line out to specifically 15 ft. under my bobber I had put a shiner on already and suddenly the line started pulling down, yep, I had a nice fish on. Turned out to be 13 inch fish probably about a pound but since I had enough fish for a meal I released it for a VBAC minimum release. But that turned out to be the last fish caught that day. Unfortunately Russell didn't hook any but did get a pull down at one point. Not sure why. We both did pretty much the same thing but I had different color Garland rubber on. Still it was a great crappie day for me.

2.5.19 Fishing with Bob

Went fishing the next day with Bob Stuhlman in my V14 Tracker. Bob could only join me after noon but he had picked up some shiners at Atlantic Bait and Tackle. I had to fix my flat tire on my trailer so half day trip was fine with me and we found no one in the parking lot. We headed straight to the place I caught that big one the day before but this time the wind was lighter from the NE which presented a different and slower drift. Setting up deep again I hooked up on the first drift but it got off right at the boat. Two more drifts and I had another on which was a much heavier fish. It measured 14 inches but with no scale with us I decided to bet that it was at least 1 lb., 8 oz. minimum for a VBAC weight minimum. We continued to fish that spot but no joy for the rest of the daylight. We did try the spot I had caught the three crappie the day before but there was no wind at all there. The parking lot is closed at 5pm by the Norfolk Police so we got off earlier since I had tried to buy a Norfolk Lakes Fishing Permit from OE but they didn't have anymore, sold out. Another disappointment by Oceans' East. But when I went there to weigh this big crappie he was exactly 1 lb 8 oz on the nose. No strike three for OE. Turned out that I can send in the completed form from the City of Norfolk website with my $10 with a copy of my drivers license. Keeping a copy on me till it is sent to me. But again my fishing partner did not catch anything. Just one pull down and shiner stolen. Well we just have to try again while the warm days last.

Blessings,
Ike

A day on Lake Whitehurst.

Went fishing with Russell on Lake Whitehurst with the forecast being light winds out of the North then shifting to the East. With 53 degree wind and 48 degree water and N winds I knew it would be cold but fishable. We went the last place we found crappie and could only locate small schools at first but drifted through them. Nothing for two drifts then on the third I hooked up to a small 3/4 lb fish but Russell needed fish so it went in the box and we stayed there and in no time I had a big one on my blue and white Bobby Garland tail. He weighed 1 lb 10 oz on my new digital scale and measured 14.5 inches, too small for a state release but big enough for a club weigh citation. So we continued to drift the area with first N winds under 5 mph then shifting to ESE at 6 mph. This seemed to really be the ticket and soon I had two more and Russell had two also. On the last drift in that direction I had another big one that again weighed 1 lb 10 lb and was 14 inches on my scale. That was pretty much it for catching and while we tried other places that had bait, no fish. All caught on medium shiner on jigs with various rubber tails, mostly Bobby Garlands. Blue and white was best. Went to Ocean's East and both of my fish weighed by Zach were exactly what my scale said 1 lb 10 oz. 6 fish in the box was good eating for Russell.

Blessings,
Ike
